SEASON TICKET SURPRISE

After 2020 proved to be a difficult year for so many people, Cassie Hahn and her family were relieved to begin 2021. But come the morning of Saturday, Jan. 2, 2021, the Hahn family had a lot more to celebrate than the New Year.

As part of continued fan appreciation efforts, two Patriots cheerleaders surprised Hahn and her husband Dave at their Foxborough home with the news that their 2021 Patriots season tickets would be covered by the Kraft family.

"I was quite shocked," Cassie said. "We were taken aback by it all, and so honored to receive this surprise. I love this town, and of course I love the Pats and I love my job, so I'm really humbled and still in awe that we were chosen."

Gillette Stadium surpasses 250,000 vaccinations

In another instrumental step in our community's ongoing fight against COVID-19, Massachusetts opened the state's first large-scale vaccination site at Gillette Stadium this winter. With the official opening of the site, Gillette Stadium became the first sports and entertainment venue in the northeast to open for mass vaccinations, the third NFL stadium in the country to do so, and the largest vaccination site in the Commonwealth.

The site, operated by Cambridge-based company CIC Health, opened in mid-January beginning with the administration of vaccines to first responders and health care workers. After gradually opening with 300 vaccines a day, the site is now capable of vaccinating up to 10,000 eligible people daily. Coincidentally, on the milestone serve as the state's administering more than over 250,000 total.

Gillette Stadium is proud to serve as the state's largest vaccination site, administering more than 7,000 vaccines per day and over 250,000 total.

Phase IV enables large capacity venues throughout the state to welcome fans back in 2021, and marks an important step toward a return to normalcy for Patriots and Revolution fans across the region, including the Foxborough faithful, who we know are eager to once again cheer on their hometown teams from the Gillette Stadium stands.

SURPRISE: Resident gets 2021 season tickets covered

The Hahns have lived in Foxborough for the past two decades, and have been proud Patriots Season Ticket Members for nine years. Cassie and Dave are both health care workers for Brigham and Women's Hospital, and first met at Brigham's Patriot Place location, where Cassie still works to this day. Dave has since moved to a supervisor role at Brigham's Westwood location, and both Hahns remain committed to caring for others.

While the Hahns were delighted with the news, Cassie said her favorite part of the experience was the personal message the family received from Robert Kraft, chairman and CEO of the Kraft Group, congratulating them and thanking them for their loyalty, and years of service as health care professionals.

"I think Mr. Kraft is a huge part of this town, this community, and obviously the Patriots, and he has done so much," Cassie said. "To hear from him and have him acknowledge and thank me and my husband was incredible and we were so taken aback. Honestly, just the video alone would have been enough for me, and the tickets were the cherry on top."

The surprise was part of fan appreciation week, during which four other Season Ticket Members also had their 2021 season tickets covered. As health care workers, Cassie and Dave have both received their COVID-19 vaccines and can't wait to get back to Gillette Stadium to cheer on their hometown team.

McCourtys Twins Share Words of Wisdom with FHS Student Athletes

New England Patriots team captains and Super Bowl champions Devin and Jason McCourtys took time out of their offseason break to join 13 Foxborough High School student athletes for a wide-ranging discussion about leadership, social justice and overcoming adversity.

During the 45-minute virtual session sponsored by Pepsi, the McCourtys answered a variety of submitted questions and shared anecdotes about their playing careers. The twins, who played football and basketball in high school, spoke at length about the sacrifices and dedication required to succeed on and off the field, the increased appreciation they gained for the relationships in their lives over the past year, as well as social justice initiatives and learning together as a team. They also shared some tidbits and a behind-the-scenes look on their different journeys that led to them winning a Super Bowl together, and their enduring drive to improve and push each other to be better every day.

Captains from the Foxborough football, softball and boys lacrosse teams had the exclusive opportunity to chat with and learn from the two Patriots defensive backs. One of the lucky participants was Morgan Sylvestre, senior captain for the softball team. Sylvestre pointed to hearing the McCourtys share personal stories as her highlight from the evening.

"My biggest takeaway was that the sacrifices you make will help you with your end goal and you need to work hard to get where you aspire to be in the future," Sylvestre said. "Participating in this panel meant a lot to me because the Patriots are a big part of our community, and it was very interesting to ask the McCourtys questions about their journey."

Nicole Theriault, a senior athlete on FHS' basketball and softball teams, pointed to the importance of hard work and making sacrifices to achieve goals as her biggest takeaway, and enjoyed hearing the McCourtys' stories of their own experiences, including an anecdote about when Kobe Bryant spoke to the Patriots in 2018.

"I feel very fortunate that I had the unique opportunity to be a part of this panel with the McCourtys," Theriault said. "It was so cool to hear from two people who have made such an impact in our community and are athletes that so many of us look up to and have played such a huge part in our childhood."

FACES OF FOXBOROUGH

KEVIN HITCHCOCK

Kevin Hitchcock's soccer career has taken him all over the globe, with his most recent stop landing him in Foxborough. After enjoying an 18-year decorated playing career in England, Hitchcock embarked on a 20-year coaching career including stints in England, Qatar and India. He became an assistant coach for the Revolution in April 2019 and moved to town a few months later.

"Our neighbors have made us feel so welcome," Hitchcock said. "Now we have an all-American family too and we cannot thank them enough for their kindness."

In his role, Hitchcock primarily works with the team's goalkeepers, including team all-star and U.S. Men's National Team player Matt Turner. Hitchcock was a key part of last season's team that made an impressive run to the Eastern Conference Final before losing 1-0 to the eventual champion Columbus Crew.

"My favorite thing about working at the Revs is the dedication of the group of guys I work with," Hitchcock said. "Their attitude every day is first class and their performance each training session is exemplary."

When he isn't working, Hitchcock enjoys golfing at the Foxborough Country Club, where head club pro Louis Rivers has welcomed him with open arms. Hitchcock and the Revs kick off the 2021 season April 17 at the Chicago Fire FC.

HEALTH CARE SUPERHEROES

Foxborough natives honored during Patriots game vs. Bills

While there weren't any fans permitted in the stands for the 2020 Patriots season, at first glance during the Monday Night Football matchup against the Buffalo Bills, the south end zone appeared to be filled with cheering faces. As a small token of appreciation for their countless sacrifices, the Kraft family and Patriots organization honored health care heroes by displaying 1,000 cutouts of health care workers from across New England.

Among the faces in the crowd were Foxborough natives and siblings Aaron Bell and Sarah Morris (née Bell), who had a front row seat to the action in the Optum Field Lounge. Bell is a graduate of Foxborough High School and has worked for Boston MedFlight for the past 11 years as a critical care transport nurse. He is part of a team that provides critical care medical transportation via helicopters, planes and ambulances, including transporting over 1,200 COVID-19 patients over the past several months.

"I love going to work," Bell said. "Having the opportunity to make a difference for somebody and their family is very rewarding. Every day isn't a save, but I do hopefully go into each situation being prepared to really help somebody on what could be the hardest day of their life. There are some days that I am part of a team that is able to accomplish that."

Morris is a few years younger than her brother and shares the same passion for giving back and helping others. She is a nurse practitioner working for the emergency surgery service at UPenn's hospital, and in her role handles surgical operations and the post operation care of these patients. After seeing family members cared for by health care professionals when she was growing up, Morris knew she wanted to give back as well and became one herself.

"There's so many people in my community here who need help and don't know how to ask for it or that they even needed it," Morris said. "I find a lot of joy in helping those people and taking care of people that live in my community."

As Foxborough natives with family still living in town, Bell and Morris normally make the trip home for at least one Patriots game every season, a tradition they were obviously unable to partake in this year. However, even though they weren't there in person, their smiling faces were still in the stands, with Bell wearing his Patriots scrubs in his cutout.

"We thought it was a really cool opportunity to be at the game, or be present for the game while staying distant," Bell said. "Everybody's trying to give back and we're all doing our part during this pandemic. To be a part of being normal and being recognized, that meant the most. Just to be thanked by an organization that I've supported growing up right down the street in Foxborough – being a part of that community and an experience like this one was a really special thing."

Morris felt honored to be recognized by her hometown team, in the stadium she saw from her childhood bedroom window.

"My brother and I don't work together, so it was an honor to be able to be in my work uniform next to him. He has been such an inspiration to me," Morris said. "This was like being recognized as part of the Patriots family, which was super cool because the Patriots have always been such a big part of my family's lives."

TAKING THE BIG

Foxborough first responders receive COVID-19 vaccine at Gillette Stadium

Among the first to receive their first dose of the vaccine at the home of the New England Patriots and Revolution were some of Foxborough's finest. Foxborough Fire Chief Michael Kelleher and Foxborough Police Officer Brendan Fayles each received their first dose of the vaccine during the site's soft opening on Friday, Jan. 15.

"Given what we've been through in the last year now, I think there was a lot of anticipation to get the first shot," Kelleher said. "This is an especially proud day for us because it signifies that start to getting on the road to back to normal."

"I think having it at Gillette Stadium is going to make people more comfortable coming here," Fayles said. "People look up to us, so if they see that their police officers, their firemen are getting the vaccine they might say, 'listen, maybe I'm going to get it, too.'"

Along with CIC Health, Fallon Ambulance, Mass General Brigham and DMSE Sports have played key roles in the vaccination process. As of March 23, over 250,000 total vaccinations have been administered at Gillette Stadium to eligible residents. The Commonwealth continues to progress through vaccination phases, and recently announced that all residents 16 and older will be able to get the vaccine starting

April 19. The Gillette Stadium team is also working with state and local officials on adding drive-through vaccinations this spring to further increase the site's capabilities and serve the Commonwealth's needs.

"Gillette Stadium is accustomed to accommodating large audiences and are honored to provide a location to expedite the vaccination of first responders, and expand to residents throughout the Commonwealth," said Jim Nolan, COO at Gillette Stadium. "As we have done throughout the pandemic, Gillette Stadium and the entire Kraft Sports + Entertainment organization stand ready to assist Governor Baker and the Commonwealth. We are proud to do our part and grateful to the incredible team of people whose championship-caliber efforts will help save lives and defend against the spread of this virus."

PIP Fund Grants $15,000 in Continued Support of Town Initiatives

PIP FUND TEAMING WITH TOWN TO SUPPORT MARILYN RODMAN PERFORMING ARTS CENTER

The PIP Fund is working with the Foxborough community to help the Marilyn Rodman Performing Arts Center get up to code with the purchase of a new fire curtain mechanism. This town staple will not be able to reopen to the public until the curtain mechanism is installed, which is why the PIP Fund has pledged to match all community donations made in 2021, up to $6,500, to cover the cost of this installation.

People interested in supporting the MRPAC's fundraising efforts to help raise the matching $6,500 can donate to the theater's "You Are the Show" campaign on the MRPAC's website. Additionally, the MRPAC will be hosting the Rodman Awards June 3 to celebrate community members and organizations who have impacted the communities they serve during the pandemic. PIP FUND CONTINUES COMMITMENT TO IGO CARES

The PIP Fund continued its longstanding support of Igo-Cares, granting the organization $5,000 to assist Foxborough families in need within the Igo School community.

Since the IgoCares program was founded in 2014, the PIP Fund has donated over $30,000 to the organization to support these Foxborough families in need.

Igo Elementary is the largest of three Foxborough elementary schools, with the highest percentage of free and reduced cost lunch students in town. COVID-19 has also further increased the needs of these families. Igo-Cares provides Igo families in need with food, clothing and other resources to help them through times of crisis. This grant from the PIP Fund will help purchase gift cards that go to these families in need of food, clothing and holiday assistance, and also cover 10 summer camp scholarships.

PIP FUND SUPPORTS FOXBORO TOUCHDOWN CLUB

The PIP Fund showed their support for the Foxboro Touchdown Club by sponsoring a full page advertisement in the 2021 Foxborough High School football team program. The advertisement will help fund the creation of the 2021 team program and the football team. The program will serve as a keepsake for the players and their families of their hard work and dedication to the team. The PIP Fund also recently covered the cost of 60 weatherproof sideline capes to keep players warm and dry throughout the 2021 season, which kicked off in February this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Local Season Ticket Members Enjoy MNF Primetime Moment

During the Patriots penultimate game of the season against the Buffalo Bills, several Foxborough Season Ticket Members once again had the chance to be part of the primetime broadcast.

Longtime residents and season ticket members Mike Kominsky and Chris Orena were featured in the virtual fan mosaic displayed throughout the Monday Night Football broadcast on Dec. 28.

Kominsky has been the proud owner of season tickets for the past 28 years and normally watches home games from his seats in the south end zone alongside his three sons. His son James, who was at the Snow Bowl Game alongside his dad as a kid in 2001, is in the Army and was stationed overseas in Saudi Arabia. Before the season started, Kominsky had a larger-than-life cutout made of his son so he could still "accompany" him to games this season. Although Kominsky never had the opportunity to bring the cutout to a game, he was able to set it up so his son's smiling face was featured on the MNF broadcast. Kominsky relished the opportunity to get a behind-the-scenes look and be part of something he's watched on

"I thought it was fantastic and very exciting to be part of something that you watch on TV," Kominsky said. "It was interesting to see what other people have to do behind the scenes to make sure everything worked right, even with this being just a small part of the whole production."

Orena and his wife were two of the other Foxborough faces featured on the broadcast. A Texas native who has lived in town for the past two decades, Orena heard from friends and family members from his home state who saw his cheering face on MNF.

When they weren't being featured on the ESPN broadcast watched by millions across the country, Kominsky and Orena enjoyed participating in trivia, and the opportunity to chat during halftime with Patriots alum and three-time Super Bowl Champion Kevin Faulk. For their time and efforts, participants also received a mini-helmet autographed by Patriots wide receiver Julian Edelman. As a southern transplant himself, Orena especially enjoyed talking to Faulk about his transition from balmy Louisiana, where he grew up and went to college, to the chilly New England weather.

"I think the best part was talking to Faulk, and it was pretty cool to have him join," Orena said. "That was really unexpected and neat because you could ask him any kind of questions you wanted and we all ran out of questions because we were talking him for so long. I never expected a player to join, because it was right in the middle of the game so that was a nice surprise and a lot of fun."

Although the outcome of the game wasn't what Kominsky and Orena wanted, they had a blast taking part in the MNF broadcast.

Pats Surprise Guests for Random Acts of Kindness Day at Dunkin' Locations in Town

As people navigated the drive-thru line and arrived at the pick-up window, they were greeted by the friendly faces of Pat and the cheerleaders and the news that their Wednesday morning just got a little better, with their order covered courtesy of the Patriots.

Firefighters from Foxborough Fire Group 3 were among the dozens of people treated to free Dunkin'. Foxborough firefighter paramedic for the past three years and lifelong resident Joe Dantona enjoyed his complimentary Dunkin' alongside his fellow firefighters.

"We were beyond grateful to be treated by the Patriots with Dunkin' gift cards and look forward to paying this act of kindness forward the next time we're there," Dantona said.
